The True Mission of Christ

Through the ages, the identity of Christ has been inscrutable to humanity, particularly so in the post-modern, material age. Now, as we enter the Aquarian Age, it is important to decrease the mystery surrounding this Being and diminish the perceived distance between humanity and its Eldest Brother. For human beings to cooperate in the elevation of planetary consciousness, there must be a common base of understanding.

The Being you know of as Christ is more highly advanced than the rest of Earth's humanity. His consciousness evolved through sojourns on different planets in our solar system, including Earth, before his birth in Palestine. He did not appear 'out of nowhere,' as some would believe, and was not only a biological descendant of a Jewish lineage. He was marshalled into service by the planetary Logos, the Being Who ensouls the Earth, to meet an evolutionary need. He understood the humanity of the time, drawing on a deep well of experience from previous incarnations, and acclimatizing himself to the life of the people and place of his biological birth as Jesus of Nazareth.

Though his roots lay elsewhere in this solar system, he bonded with the souls of his disciples and the many acolytes who were drawn to him for healing and learning. It was for Him a cycle of service to the planetary Lord and the spiritual Hierarchy. His mission inaugurated a prolonged effort to evoke the higher nature of human beings in the goal of transforming Earth into a contributing factor in the progressive evolution of the planetary Lives comprising the greater body of the solar Logos, the life-giving Presence ensouling our solar system.

The mandate of Christ was to advance the evolution of humanity through the embodiment of spiritual love. His status within the life of the planet was unique in that regard. Whereas His Brother, the Buddha, appeared on Earth to bring the Light of higher awareness to humanity, it was the mission of Christ to embody the Love that would engender the opening of the human heart, allowing the higher light to be absorbed.

Christ appeared on Earth to forge the path of spiritual return for humanity and to exemplify the outcome of this path. It is a path that begins when the heart opens to receive the love of Divinity and when, in the downpouring of this love, the light of truth can be received. Until this great opening occurs, the essential truth about human existence cannot be grasped. To be able to acknowledge that one is reaping the fruits of previous lifetimes, even in the face of debilitating suffering, requires a realization of the Love of God.

This has been part of the mission of Christ from the time he healed the blind man and people asked who had sinned: the man himself or his parents. This will be a core component of his mission upon returning as the World Teacher. In this role, he will teach about the laws of cause and effect—the divine laws that will, over time, rightly adjust the behavior of human beings. Outside of a climate of love, such learning would not be possible. People would recoil from these truths without the protective mantle of a loving God. Christ, through the love radiating through him, will provide this mantle.

Some may have already deduced that Venus was one of the planetary Lives in which the one who incarnated as Jesus had sojourned. In that life, his soul was immersed in and imprinted by a steady flow of divine love. It is known to esoteric students that Venus is to Earth what the human soul is to the personality: the divine essence, ripened over eons to a stage beyond the lesser consciousness—the higher Self that stands ready and waiting for the opening to imbue the lesser consciousness with itself.

The mission of the Coming One will be to narrow the gap between the human soul and its persona through the diffusion of spiritual love. Toward this end, the steady stream of disasters besieging humanity have played an important part. By breaking up crystallized patterns of behavior and thought, they have opened minds and hearts to higher realities. Into this opening, Christ's Ashram, the planetary Hierarchy, has been pouring forth love. Into the human heart, tenderized by misery, teachings of higher Truth will be heard clearly for the first time in the evolution of the race.
